Have you ever had the feeling that you were being watched? Perhaps it is just your wolf watching you from behind your eyes just scratching to come out and run. If not, maybe it is someone else just out of sight hidden in the black of the night. You're right to be scared of the dark. There are lots of teeth and claws just waiting for you to take one more step. When you hear a howl off in the distance it is probably just a coyote, probably. But if you ever find yourself walking home at night with the moon lighting your way and your hair stands up as it follows a chill down the back of your neck, don't explain it away as a chilly breeze, just run because it is hard to control a wolf.
